

IEEE—Serving the Needs of Industry

Global Outreach through IEEE

Organizations that help make a difference in their communities contribute to the greater good of our world. Volunteering and sponsorship are both rewarding ways to promote public goodwill.

IEEE, true to its vision of advancing technology for the benefit of humanity, has historically reached out with humanitarian activities that address problems seen in the more vulnerable areas around the world.

IEEE Humanitarian Technology Network (HTN)

HTN is a multimedia, interactive repository of IEEE member humanitarian efforts around the world.

HTN facilitates communication between IEEE members who are involved in these remarkable humanitarian accomplishments and interested organizations, foundations and the public. Visit: www.ieeehtn.org

How Can Your Organization Contribute?

1. Get your organization recognized as a contributor to industry by asking your top technical professionals to present at IEEE conferences and events.
2. Sponsor IEEE events and competitions that take place around the world and be an important part of the growth and development of IEEE programs.
3. Encourage your employees to act as mentors and share their expertise as a guide to young professionals, helping them with developmental challenges and career goals.

IEEE Foundation

The IEEE Foundation administers more than 130 donor designated funds that support a variety of educational, humanitarian, historical preservation and peer-recognition programs of IEEE.

Community Outreach through IEEE Sections

IEEE sections offer a community of members who are connected by similar interests. One interest they all have in common is advancing technology for the benefit of humanity. No matter what your corporate goals and vision might be, know that there is great value and reward in giving back to your community.

"It's the interaction among people, the side conversations, and the chatting in front of a whiteboard that makes IEEE so valuable."

Dr. Vint Cerf, IEEE Fellow, Vice President & Chief Evangelist, Google

Expanding Your Local Outreach

Get your organization recognized as a contributor to your community by providing an available space in order to conduct meetings.

Offer to hold a technical tour of your facility to local IEEE student members and be an important part of their learning, growth and development.

Work with your local sections to organize career development activities and competitions in your area. Encourage young engineers to develop their skills and network with other industry members.

In-Kind and Individual Sponsorship

Equipment and Services Donation

Companies can donate their unused equipment and provide various services, such as volunteering to judge, to support local competitions. Companies can also provide an item to be included in gift bags given to local competition participants.

Please feel free to contact us if you have any ideas so we can explore ways to partner with you.

Ask your local IEEE section leader about any local events, sponsorship or marketing opportunities your organization could get involved in.
